

Humans live in this tension between wanting to live lives of adventure and wanting to be comfortable.

From my own journey, I've come to understand that one choice inevitably demands the sacrifice of the other. You can't live a real adventure from your living room sofa.

The same is true when we follow Jesus. If we want to experience the abundant life He promises us, we must realize that a God-adventure will always include a DARE.

The DARE is God's invitation to a life of purpose and fruitfulness, and it will always be a roller coaster. It won't always be comfortable, but it won't be predictable and boring.

Maybe you think those kinds of adventures are best left to the people in the Bible. After all, you could never do the type of things that God asked of them.

Think again.

Those heroes of the Bible were ordinary men and women who simply said "yes" to God's DARE. Did they have doubts? Yes. Were they afraid? Of course. The Bible says so.

You and I cannot live the adventure we were created for without saying "yes" to God's DARE.

Our gifts, talents, and strengths are like light bulbs. They must be connected to a power source to fulfill their purposes. Embracing God's dare allows His presence, power, and provision to flow into and through you.

Will your God-adventure have scary moments? Absolutely. But the best part is that He consistently partners WITH you because He knows you cannot embrace this DARE without Him.

You'll live an adventure that will surpass anything you could ever imagine...

...and you'll be in His hands the entire time.
